Publishing an anthology of an author’s already-published essays and articles in a volume may perhaps be justified by bringing together writings scattered in a number of journals and books, not always easy to come by, in one place.

The thirteen pieces in this volume were published between 1984 and 2007 in academic journals and books; few appear for the first time in English, having only been published in Turkish. Again I would like to thank the editors and publishers of the journals and volumes in which these articles originally appeared.

Again a word of thanks to Fahri Aral and his team at Bilgi University Press for the making it a pleasure to work with them, and to my editor Goksun Yazici for her professionalism in the editing of the text. Finally, I must also thank Sakir Dincsahin, my colleague at Yeditepe University, who helped me prepare these pieces before they were sent to the publisher.
